Yes, it does promote awareness and knowledge. This poster shows how Filipino culture is. It gives us awareness of how we should act based on our culture. The knowledge that it contains is valued. This is how the elders taught us to do it since we were young, and we still carry it until we're older.

Yes, this poster does promote attitude and value change. The attitude shown on the poster is proper mannerism. The elders had already taught us how to treat the elderly since we were children. We should know that they are the elderly and we, as children, need to show proper mannerism. Value change has occurred lately throughout the years. However, what was taught to us can't be changed. We can be the ones who teach them how to value someone in the proper way. We can show them proper mannerism to know how to respect and have morals.

Yes, it does promote behavioral change. Because of what the elders taught us and showed us to do, they are becoming our role models. By that, our behavior changes based on what we see and what is taught to us.

Yes, based on what Fidel V. Ramos proclaimed was done in Manila City on October 7, 1994. "Filipino Values Month" was declared every year in the month of November. It is said that the observance celebrates each person's triumph by overcoming all the obstacles that come in our way and to create a world where we rejoice uniquely as one with Filipino values. Through what the president declared, we have the chance to celebrate Filipino values while we respect each other's perspectives through online learning and activities in either public or private schools.

If I were to celebrate Filipino Values Month, I'd use social media platforms such as Facebook and Instagram. These platforms are used by many. We can easily share, discuss, and give knowledge about the importance of Filipino Values Month. This is where we can grow as one, helping those in need and showing them by being a true makabayan. By sharing this online, we can promote Filipino values and help others learn how to overcome the trials they have been experiencing while being there on their side, teaching them how.
